

Julie Williams, Managing Director and Director of Domestic Advisory Practice.

Julie was the First Senior Deputy Comptroller and Chief Counsel of the U.S. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (the "OCC") and twice served as Acting Comptroller of the Currency. During her tenure at the OCC, she was responsible for developments in key areas of banking law and major regulatory projects, and played a leadership role on behalf of the OCC in connection with the development of major banking legislation and regulation. Her regulatory and advisory work at the OCC included issues and initiatives relating to bank powers, risk management, capital, mergers and acquisitions, resolution of troubled institutions, enforcement and compliance matters involving a variety of issues, consumer protection, and capital markets activities of financial companies. She was extensively involved in issues and projects that cut across the financial regulatory agencies, and has significant experience working with the Federal Reserve, the FDIC, the CFPB and the SEC. At Promontory, her work combines extensive expertise in financial services law and regulation, familiarity with agencies' policies and expectations, and knowledge of the banking business, to provide guidance and practical solutions to clients.
