

Mary Ann Lowney, Esq.

Retired: Managing Director, Head of Compliance and Operational Risk,
Bank of America Private Bank

Currently: Ski Sabbatical Winter 2021-2022

Education: B.A. Boston College
J.D. Boston University School of Law

Profession & Responsibilities

Mary Ann held varied senior positions in her 30 years at Bank of America, before retiring in Autumn 2021. Most recently, Mary Ann led the Compliance and Operational Risk team overseeing the activities of the Private Bank, the Conflicts compliance function for the Global Wealth Investment Management division, and Regulation O compliance for the overall Bank. In this role, Mary Ann led a national team of professionals executing a fulsome compliance and operational risk program covering the wide range of services offered by the award-winning Private Bank (including investment management, fiduciary, philanthropic and banking). Mary Ann served on various senior governance committees with a commitment to fiduciary excellence and integrity, including the board-delegated bank Fiduciary Risk Oversight Committee.

Prior roles within the firm held by Mary Ann include senior positions in the legal, compliance and business divisions, involving fiduciary litigation management, product and branding support, regulatory interpretation, training development and corporate governance.

Mary Ann served as Chair for the corporate risk division's Council on Employee Satisfaction, Diversity and Inclusion at both a business line and national level.

Personal Data & Interests

Mary Ann plays forward for the recreational Black Ice women's ice hockey team, and is actively involved in the Council for Women of Boston College, dedicated to furthering the role of women as leaders and active participants in the University.

Mary Ann is married to Matt Mahoney (BC Law/Holy Cross) and they have three children: Joe (University of Wisconsin-Madison '24), Annie (BC/BC Graduate School of Social Work '21) and Meg (UCLA '21).