

George Galindo

George Galindo is a managing director at PricewaterhouseCoopers who directs their US Third Party Assurance practice, focusing on providing independent assurance beyond traditional financial reporting.. George has been with PwC for over 16 years in a variety of roles, primarily around technology and enterprise risk management, and providing non-financial assurance in the marketplace. Specializing across multiple industries and sectors, including Financial Services, George has authored a number of external whitepapers and hosted multiple client webcasts and roundtables addressing the need for increased transparency in operational, performance and compliance reporting. Based in Dallas, George specializes in assisting organizations in providing increased and customized transparency to stakeholders, customers, business partners and regulators.