

Errol Weiss

Errol Weiss has over 20 years of experience in Information Security and is the Director of Citi's Cyber Intelligence Center. He is responsible for managing the organization that receives threat intelligence from commercial and government sources and delivers prioritized actionable alerts to over 2,500 customers within Citi. Mr. Weiss spent 8 years with NSA as an information security engineer and then 10 years with companies such as SAIC, Global Integrity and Predictive Systems delivering information security services including Managed Security Services, Security Product Implementations and Secure Network Designs for Fortune-100 companies.

Mr. Weiss is a named inventor on the patent for the Information Sharing and Analysis Center (ISAC). Today, he is an active user of the FS-ISAC, serves on the FS-ISAC Board of Directors and volunteers on several committees. Mr. Weiss represents the financial services sector at DHS and US Intelligence Community meetings, and works with those representatives to turn classified information into actionable intelligence that can be shared broadly across the sector at an unclassified level. In June 2012, Mr. Weiss testified before the House Financial Services Committee's Subcommittee on Capital Markets and Government Sponsored Enterprises at the "Cyber Threats to Capital Markets and Corporate Accounts" hearing.

Mr. Weiss has a M.S. in Technical Management from Johns Hopkins University and a B.S. in Computer Engineering from Bucknell University.
